Course Summary	How do you express your research content and issues in Japanese when preparing materials for seminar presentations and research presentations? Also, when you're ready and giving a presentation in front of everyone, have you ever been in trouble because you don't know how to make a speech? Academic Japanese is not the only thing you need to present your research. Together, let's study more Japanese skills necessary for research.	Practice practical business conversations through role-playing tasks. The theme of each session is ① "participating in an internship" ② "working as a new employee" ③ "how to make a phone call in the business situations". In the latter half of each lesson, we will introduce examples related to the theme, so let's freely exchange opinions with each other.	While learning the flow and expressions of speech, we will hone your skills on how to convey in an easy-to-understand manner. We will also practice explaining basic illustrative materials (charts). On the last day, you are going to give a short presentation. Aim for a compelling speech. * Since the content is for N2 students, N1 holders may withdraw. * Those who can attend the whole three days with their web camera on during the sessions are encouraged to apply.	Do you usually use only "desu" or "masu" when talking? Can you talk correctly with your friends in a "casual" style? Let's practice pronunciation (accent and intonation) so that you can have a natural conversation. After that, practice conversation with other students through pair work.
